

FOR HGSE STUDENT COUNCIL

Amber Bellou

Ed.M. candidate • Harvard Graduate School of Education

Every voice at HGSE deserves to be heard.

I'm Algerian, I grew up in France, and I moved to the US alone as an international student in high school and figured out this system by myself. I hold two bachelor's degrees and a master's in data and computational social science, and I work in educational nonprofits on AI safety and how it shapes the way we learn. I'm running to listen first, gather what we actually need, and turn it into real change.

What I will work on

-  Open doors to opportunity
Fair, early access to internships, research, labs and jobs, in one shared place.
-  International students
Visa and OPT guidance that arrives before you need it. I've lived this.
-  Closer to faculty
Meet-ups, small lunches and mentoring, for online and in-person students.
-  Food on the table
More community meals, better deals, and food resources for anyone who needs them.
-  One Harvard, not one building
Real ways into the other Harvard grad schools, not just HGSE.
-  Online students, equally
Same access to research, internships and faculty. You are HGSE too.
-  Student parents
A parent network, kid-friendly events, and family-aware scheduling.
-  Decisions from your data
Every month I publish what you told me and what actually changed.

I would be honored to serve every HGSE student — international, African, Asian, Black, white, students of color, Muslim, Jewish, Christian, Indigenous, LGBTQ+, disabled, online, student parents, women, every single one of us.
